A Guide to Donating Books to the Library

*Your donation is valuable to us.
Thank you for your donation.*

What happens to my donation?

We are delighted to receive your donation. The library benefits whether these books or other materials are added to our collection or are sold to help raise funds for materials, programs and other enhancements.

Does the library accept all books?

We accept all books. Books that have the highest likelihood of being added to our collection or placed in our book sale are those that are clean, dry and generally in good condition. Most textbooks, outdated technology books, workbooks or damaged books with torn or defaced pages are difficult to place or sell. If the books or materials are not in good condition they must be discarded. Therefore, instead of donating these books, please recycle them.

How do I get my donation to the library?

You may deliver your donation to any branch library. We are particularly grateful for books and other materials that arrive packed in sturdy boxes as storage can be a problem.

How else can I help the library?

The Friends of the Miami-Dade Public Library are always looking for volunteers to help with their annual book sale. Call 305-375-4776 or 305-375-5017 or email Friends@mdpls.org for more information.
